Night Depository Heads Being Compromised

All,

There have been reports of attacks on night depositories in the past few months. Styles of the depositories attacked include the Hamilton Safe model 80UC and like models of those companies that have copied the Hamilton design. These attacks have been successful in some cases when the following lists of circumstances occur. Please make sure that any installation that your dealership has been involved in verifies the correction or notifications to the end user.

Circumstance #1, Depository access lock and key cylinder removed to allow anyone access to bag deposit position.

PLEASE VERIFY THAT:

- ALL DEPOSITORY HEADS REQUIRE A KEY TO OPEN TO THE BAG POSITION

Circumstance #2, Many Night Depository installations do not connect and test the tamper device complete to the alarm system especially if another firm has the alarm responsibility.

PLEASE VERIFY THAT:

- ALL NIGHT DEPOSITORY HEAD TAMPER SWITCH CONNECTIONS ARE COMPLETE AND TESTED TO THE ALARM SYSTEM. If they are not and it is the responsibility of another company, please make the financial institution aware of the condition in writing.
